With a background in Marketing and HR, Patricia O'Callaghan is a Health Promotion Expert at SAP, with responsibility for employee awareness and engagement around SAP's two-pillar approach of individual and organizational health. This includes driving regular global awareness campaigns such as the current EU-OSHA Healthy Workplaces for all Ages campaign achieving approx. 50,000 views on its campaign content, and developing leader and employee training and enablement. Patricia leads the SAP Global Health Ambassador Network to facilitate best practice sharing and support locations to foster and promote a healthy culture.

SAP's Corporate Health Management supports the organization's purpose of helping the world run better and improve people's lives. Its preventive portfolio focuses on innovative programs and training to empower employees and leaders in achieving life balance, optimal workplace health and well-being for increased productivity and innovation. It also conceptualizes scalable health management solutions to meet increasing demands from customers and the market.

SAP has received multiple corporate health and employer of choice awards, most recently the 2017 EU-OSHA Award for Healthy Workplaces for All Ages campaign.
